Diese Vatniksoup stellt den ehemaligen  Politiker & Präsidenten Wiktor Janukowytsch vor. Er ist dafür bekannt, dass er sein Land an Russland verkauft hat & versuchte, es in einen autoritären Staat zu verwandeln. Letztlich floh er nach Moskau, als sein Plan scheiterte.

Jetzt, da  & die USA planen, Präsident Selenskyj durch jemanden zu ersetzen, der bereit ist, das Land an sie zu verkaufen (zB Wiktor Medwedtschuk oder einer seiner Kumpeln), ist es an der Zeit uns daran zu erinnern, wie Janukowytsch & Putin die  fast übernommen haben.

@realDonaldTrump

Think of it, a modestly successful comedian, Volodymyr Zelenskyy, talked the United States of America into spending $350 Billion Dollars, to go into a War that couldn't be won, that never had to start, but a War that he, without the U.S. and "TRUMP," will never be able to settle. The United States has spent $200 Billion Dollars more than Europe, and Europe's money is guaranteed, while the United States will get nothing back. Why didn't Sleepy Joe Biden demand Equalization, in that this War is far more important to Europe than it is to us — We have a big, beautiful Ocean as separation. On top of this, Zelenskyy admits that half of the money we sent him is "MISSING." He refuses to have Elections, is very low in Ukrainian Polls, and the only thing he was good at was playing Biden "like a fiddle." A Dictator without Elections, Zelenskyy better move fast or he is not going to have a Country left. In the meantime, we are successfully negotiating an end to the War with Russia, something all admit only "TRUMP," and the Trump Administration, can do. Biden never tried, Europe has failed to bring Peace, and Zelenskyy probably wants to keep the "gravy train" going. I love Ukraine, but Zelenskyy has done a terrible job, his Country is shattered, and MILLIONS have unnecessarily died — And so it continues.....

Founding Declaration of the Political Coalition Georgian Dream

/ 21 Feb.'12 / 15:13

Unofficial translation

2012 parliamentary election will mark being at an important crossroads for our country – establishment of a genuine multi-party democracy should launch after these elections. This is a choice between freedom and dictatorship; justice and injustice; Euro-Atlantic integration and international isolation. Victory of the Georgian people over politically and morally bankrupt ruling regime, which is today only struggling to maintain its power, is necessary in the 2012 parliamentary elections in order for Georgia to survive and establish itself as a modern democracy.

The coalition Georgian Dream has been established just for that victory. The coalition unites political forces, which are united based on the principles of freedom and democracy and express goals of society's majority.

After coming into power through expression of people's free will the Georgian Dream will:

1. end authoritarian rule and messianic politics in Georgia, for which it will develop institutions based on liberal-democratic values, overcome the legacy of civil confrontation and strengthen the national accord.
2. establish a balanced model of government branches, a genuine self-governance and a multi-party political system, for which it will implement a constitution reform through active participation of the public
3. ensure strengthening of the country's security and regional positions, for which it will deepen integration with the European Union and NATO and participate in economic and peacekeeping processes of regional scale.
4. start and make the country's reunification process irreversible, for which it will find the ways for dialogue with Abkhazians and Ossetians and will achieve concrete results in negotiations with Russia with the support of the international community;
5. establish electoral democracy; a tradition of accountability and change of government through elections, for which it will strengthen the opposition's role in the process of governance; protect media freedoms and encourage civil initiatives;

Es ist möglich, dass diese Strategie, die Wähler mit einer pro-europäischen und pro-westlichen Einstellung zu ködern und sich dann langsam Moskau zuzuwenden, von den russischen Geheimdiensten ausgeht, die Meister der Täuschung und des politischen Manövrierens sind.

Ukraine ex-PM Yulia Tymoshenko jailed over gas deal

11 October 2011 · 91 Comments

David Stern in Kiev says the verdict has been criticised by the EU and Russia

Former Ukraine leader Yulia Tymoshenko has been jailed for seven years.

A judge ruled the ex-prime minister had criminally exceeded her powers when she signed a gas deal with Russia in 2009.

In February 2010, when he was elected, Viktor Yanukovich enjoyed support from most of the big businessmen. He quickly formed a cabinet that represented - by my count - nine different enterprise groups. But through a rapid series of governmental changes he reduced this number to two by December 2013.

At present, the government - and increasingly the economy - is dominated by a group of young businessmen who are friends with Mr Yanukovich's eldest son Oleksandr, 40. They are widely known as the Yanukovich "family".

However, who owns what is not exactly clear, and it is possible that in fact much of the wealth might belong to Mr Yanukovich's real family.

These young businessmen from Donetsk, Mr Yanukovich's eastern home region, hold all the key economic positions in the government as well as the powerful post of interior minister.

Mr Yanukovich has used a salami tactic against the tycoons.

Young businessmen or corporate raiders buy out their enterprises one after the other. These sales have been described as not very voluntary, given that the "family" controls law enforcement, courts and the tax authorities.

They have expanded in traditional heavy industry, media, and banking. Hardly any big businessman now dares to oppose Mr Yanukovich any longer. Most try to be neutral.

Many of these associates had personal connections to Yanukovich's elder son Oleksandr, who was at the center of the Family. Before his father's presidency, Oleksandr Yanukovich worked as a dentist, but by 2013 he had assembled an array of business interests and had accumulated an estimated personal fortune of $133 million.

The Family's business interests spread far and wide, from oil and gas to prime real estate in the capital. Land for these real estate projects was often annexed from public parks and green zones, and even a public school in one case. According to media reports, armies of lawyers, phony firms and complex networks of offshore companies were used to service this business empire.

One person in this group stood out: Serhiy Kurchenko. He was 28 in 2013, when the Family's business practices started coming under scrutiny from investigative journalists. After Yanukovich gained power, Kurchenko became known as a wunderkind financial genius.

He later was referred to as "Yanukovich's wallet."

Kurchenko had an array of fictitious firms registered in flats in Kharkiv and Simferopol, whose residents had no idea they were company directors. They were linked, through financial transactions, to numerous offshore firms that churned millions of dollars for Kurchenko's corporations.

2013 war die Ukraine kurz vor der Unterzeichnung eines Assoziierungsabkommens mit der EU. In letzter Minute ließ Janukowytsch unter Druck Moskaus das Abkommen zugunsten eines Rettungspakets in Höhe von 15 Mrd. EUR von Putin fallen & stellte sich damit gegen die Bevölkerung.

Ukraine withdraws from signing the Association Agreement in Vilnius: The motives and implications

Wojciech Konończuk

On 21 November, the Ukrainian government announced its decision to suspend its preparations for signing the Association Agreement with the EU. According to media reports, President Viktor Yanukovich had already informed Štefan Füle, the EU Commissioner for Enlargement, of the decision two days earlier. In its statement, the Ukrainian government said the decision had been taken for 'reasons of national security', as well as the need to improve its declining trade with Russia and other CIS countries. At the same time, Kyiv suggested the creation of a tripartite commission of Ukraine, the EU and Russia, which would work to remove barriers in mutual economic cooperation and trade liberalisation. The government also announced a return to dialogue with the Customs Union. The Ukrainian government's withdrawal from signing the agreement with the EU has sparked the biggest public protests since 2004.

Ukraine's decision is not unexpected. Since at least the beginning of November, statements by the Ukrainian government have contained clear signs that Kyiv might opt out of signing the Association Agreement on the eve of the summit in Vilnius. The turnaround in Kyiv's cooperation with the EU results from the domestic situation, as well as increasing pressure from Russia in recent months. In the context of the upcoming presidential elections in early 2015, where victory is a priority for Ukraine's ruling elite, President Viktor Yanukovich's most important task is to stabilise the increasingly difficult economic situation. To this end, it is necessary to ensure Ukrainian goods' continued access to the Russian market, and to guarantee external financial support. The Ukrainian government is hoping that, in exchange for the postponement of its rapprochement with the EU, it will manage to come to an agreement with Russia on the issue of a stabilising loan and renegotiating the gas contract. A comprehensive Russian-Ukrainian agreement could be reached in the coming months, but its conditions are likely to be unfavourable for Kyiv. The turnaround in relations between Ukraine and the EU undermines Ukraine's negotiating position with Russia, and will result in the further destabilisation of the domestic political situation.

The Kremlin has warned Ukraine that if the country goes ahead with a planned agreement on free trade with the EU, it faces inevitable financial catastrophe and possibly the collapse of the state.

Russia is making a last-minute push to derail the integration agreement, which is due to be signed in late November. Instead, Moscow wants to lure its neighbour into its own alliance, a customs union with Belarus and Kazakhstan that critics have referred to as a reincarnation of the Soviet Union. Russia has made it clear that Ukraine has to choose between the two options and cannot sign both agreements.

The Kremlin aide added that the political and social cost of EU integration could also be high, and allowed for the possibility of separatist movements springing up in the Russian-speaking east and south of Ukraine. He suggested that if Ukraine signed the agreement, Russia would consider the bilateral treaty that delineates the countries' borders to be void.

"We don't want to use any kind of blackmail. This is a question for the Ukrainian people," said Glazyev. "But legally, signing this agreement about association with EU, the Ukrainian government violates the treaty on strategic partnership and friendship with Russia." When this happened, he said, Russia could no longer guarantee Ukraine's status as a state and could possibly intervene if pro-Russian regions of the country appealed directly to Moscow.

22 Sept 2013

"Signing this treaty will lead to political and social unrest," said the Kremlin aide. "The living standard will decline dramatically ... there will be chaos."

Ukraine's cabinet of ministers signed the agreement last week, and the choice for European integration is about the only thing that all major Ukrainian politicians agree on. However, European leaders have frequently said in the past that they will only sign if President Viktor Yanukovich orders the release of Yulia Tymoshenko, the former prime minister jailed for seven years in 2011 on charges of abuse of office, which most observers believe to be politically motivated. She is currently under armed guard in a hospital, being treated for back problems.

Although the international community has remained united in refusing to recognize Russia's annexation of Ukrainian Crimea five years ago, it has been disturbingly willing to accept Russia's narrative about the supposed mass support in Crimea for this move. Even those who recognize that the 16 March 'referendum' was flawed still assume that euphoric crowds with Russian flags are somehow more reliable than the surveys carried out before Russia's invasion that found only a minority in favour of joining Russia.

The FBI suspected an employee of the Russian Orthodox Church of recruiting agents for Russian intelligence services in the United States

The US Federal Bureau of Investigation suspected Dmitry Petrovsky, an employee of the Moscow Patriarchate's Department of External Church Relations, of working for Russian intelligence.

The FBI believes that Petrovsky, under the cover of the Russian Orthodox Church, was engaged in recruiting agents for Russian intelligence services among priests and parishioners of the Russian Orthodox Church and other Orthodox churches in the United States.

In May 2021, Petrovsky was searched upon entering the United States. Files related to Russian intelligence were found on his computer. Among the documents found were dossiers on well-known Orthodox priests in the US with details of biographies of their family members. The FBI believed that such information was necessary for Petrovsky to blackmail these people during the recruitment process.

One of the files found was marked "confidential." The FBI cited it in full in its warning. Thus, according to the agency, this document contained a description of the areas of cooperation between the Russian Orthodox Church and the Russian special services - SVR, GRU and FSB.

Wenn die Wahlen schließlich abgehalten werden, wird Russland (und die USA) einen eigenen Kandidaten aufstellen. Dieser Kandidat wird stark beworben und sein Gegner diffamiert werden. Der Kreml ist bereit, Unmengen von Rubel auszugeben, um diese Wahlen zu beeinflussen.

Plan für eventuelle Wahlen:

- 1) Die USA rufen ständig zu Neuwahlen auf
- 2) Putin & Trump werben für denselben Kandidaten & diffamieren den Gegner
- 3) Dieser Kandidat mag „pro-westlich“ erscheinen

4) Wenn er gewählt wird, beginnt er mit dem Verschachern der 🇺🇦 an 🇷🇺 & die USA.

Janukowytschs Geschichte ist eine Warnung: Die vom Kreml (& Trump) unterstützten Führer geben den 🇷🇺 Interessen Vorrang vor dem eigenen Land. Die Ukraine hat diese feindliche Übernahme abgewehrt, aber sie muss sich wie der Rest Europas auf den nächsten Versuch vorbereiten.
