Diese Vatnik-Suppe beginnt eine Serie mit dem Titel „Dekadentes Russland“. Wir blicken hinter die Kreml-Propaganda & zeigen das wahre Russland - ein autoritäres Land, das sich nicht um sein Volk kümmert & versucht an seiner imperialistischen Vergangenheit festzuhalten.

Diese 1. Suppe untersucht die religiöse Verfolgung in 🇷🇺 & den besetzten Teilen der Ukraine, wie der KGB/FSB die Religion als Spionage- und Propagandawerkzeug eingesetzt hat und wie Russland die ukrainische Kultur durch die Zerstörung der Kirchen des Landes vernichten will.

‘Kremlin's agents in robes’ – or the role of Russian Church in the Ukraine war

By Oleksii Platonov

Russland behauptet, die letzte Bastion christlicher Tradition zu sein, aber seine Taten zeigen etwas Anderes. Seit Jahrzehnten verfolgt der Staat religiöse Gruppen, foltert, inhaftiert & ermordet Geistliche, bombardiert Kirchen & benutzt die orthodoxe Kirche als Instrument. 3/22

Russland gibt vor ein christlicher Staat zu sein, aber es verfolgte das Christentum wenn es dem Staat nicht diente. In der UdSSR, besonders unter Stalin, wurden Kirchen zerstört, Priester hingerichtet & Gläubige in den Gulag geschickt. Auch heute geht die Verfolgung weiter.

Die Russisch-Orthodoxe Kirche (ROC) ist nicht unabhängig, sondern ein Propagandainstrument des Kremls. Ihr Oberhaupt, Patriarch Kirill, agiert wie ein Regierungssprecher. Er segnet Kriegsverbrechen ab, ermutigt junge Männer zum Kampf & verbreitet weltweit Propaganda.

Orthodox Patriarch Kirill blesses crosses engraved with Putin's initials for Ukraine war 'heroes'

Since the start of Vladimir Putin's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, the Russian leader has turned to religion and closed ranks with the head of the Orthodox Church to call out what he sees as the decline of Western morality.

Relentless Religious Persecution in Russia

September 1, 2021

By Dani Wassell

Last June, a Russian court sentenced Jehovah's Witness, Andrew Stupnikov, to six years in prison. He previously spent nearly eight months in detention and four months under house arrest. The same day of Stupnikov's sentencing, another Russian court sentenced four other Jehovah's Witnesses to 3-5 years in prison. These cases have been prosecuted under counter-terrorism laws.

What could the Jehovah's Witnesses, a tiny religious community in Russia, have done to earn such ire from Moscow? Why is it that the Russian government has formally labeled each of these individuals as "extremists" and therefore a threat to the state? Russia has designated the Jehovah's Witnesses as an extremist cult and therefore a menace to Russian families and the Russian state. This is a bad omen for all religious minorities in Russia.

Russia: Baptist leader detained

As reported by Radio Free Europe (RFE/RL) on 9 August 2023, police in the western Russian city of Kaluga detained Albert Ratkin, a bishop of the New Word Baptist church, "as a witness in a probe against the chairman of the Russian Union of Evangelical Christians-Baptists, Yury Sipko". Sipko is under investigation for sharing comments on social media about Russian armed forces fighting in Ukraine.

World Watch Research analyst Rolf Zeegers comments: "Pressure exerted by the government on Christians in Russia is growing. Although according to unconfirmed reports Sipko has now left Russia, his case remains an indication of how careful Christians in Russia need to be in what they say and do. Making critical statements or questioning the 'special campaign' (i.e. the war in Ukraine) can lead to severe consequences. And if the state agents cannot arrest the suspect himself, they will detain someone else who was in contact with the suspect, carry out a house-search and confiscate computers and other personal belongings."

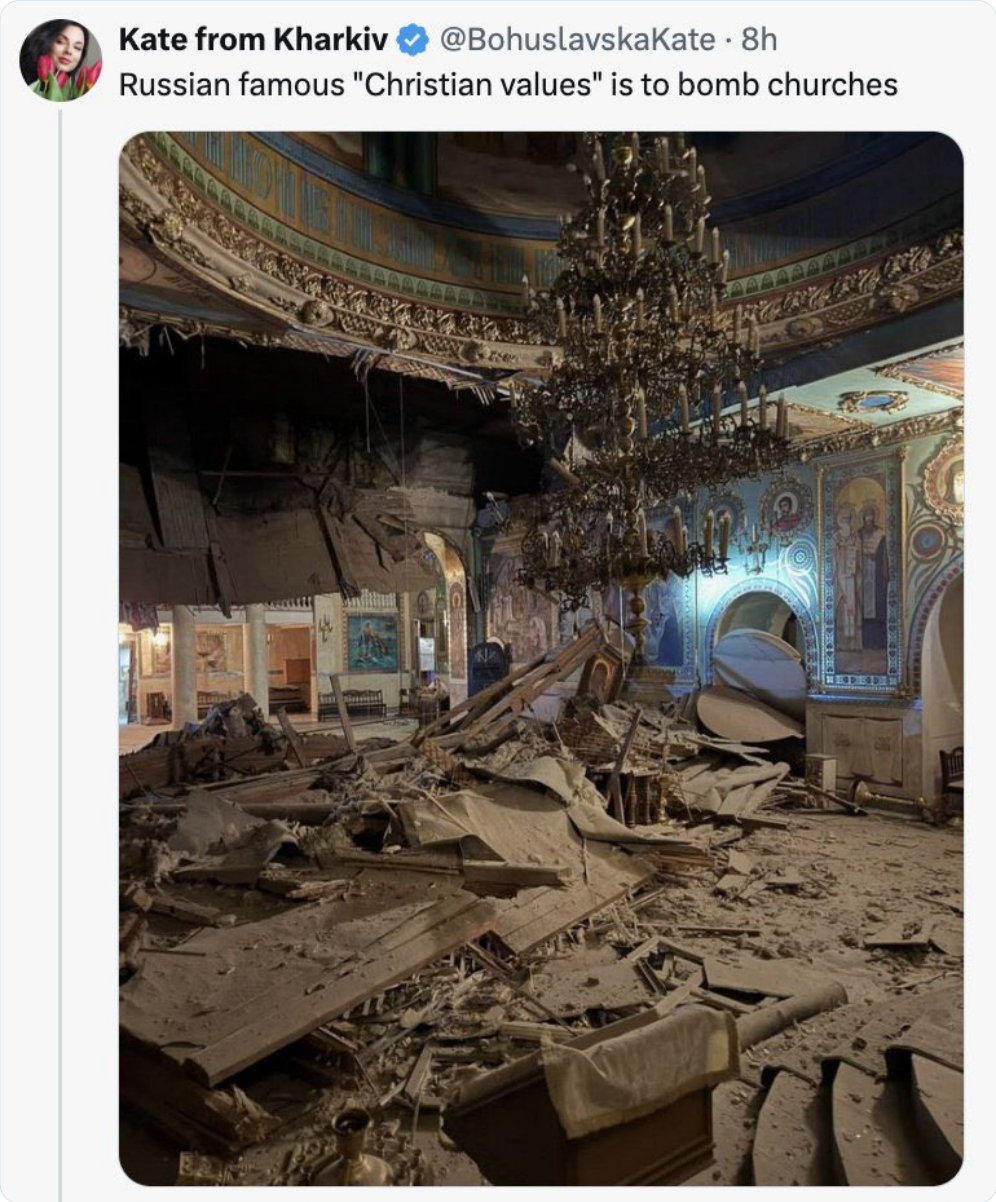
Zelensky: Russia killed about 50 Ukrainian priests during the invasion

Oleksandra Opanasenko · 18:55, 11 december 2024

Russian troops killed about 50 Ukrainian priests and destroyed 700 Ukrainian churches.

This was stated by the President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelensky in an interview with the SBN TV channel.

According to Zelensky, priests were killed for refusing to serve Russian Patriarch Kirill and the Russian Church — they were shot, and some were tortured. Priests were also taken prisoner.



In den besetzten Gebieten beschlagnahmt Russland Kirchen und überträgt sie dem Moskauer Patriarchat. Moskau-treue Priester ersetzen den örtlichen Klerus. Es gibt mehrere Fälle, wo diese Priester für den FSB gearbeitet und im Auftrag des russischen Staates spioniert haben.

> Russia's religious persecution in Ukraine against various religious groups that do not align with the Kremlin's political agenda is staggering. Dozens of brutal persecution cases - including torture, illegal deportations, disappearances - of Orthodox Christians, Muslims, Protestants, Catholics, and Jehovah's Witnesses have been documented since February 2022. Russia has been spreading misinformation and reversing the blame on Ukraine in order to continue exercising these abhorrent acts of human rights abuse and to use them to advance the Kremlin's political agenda.

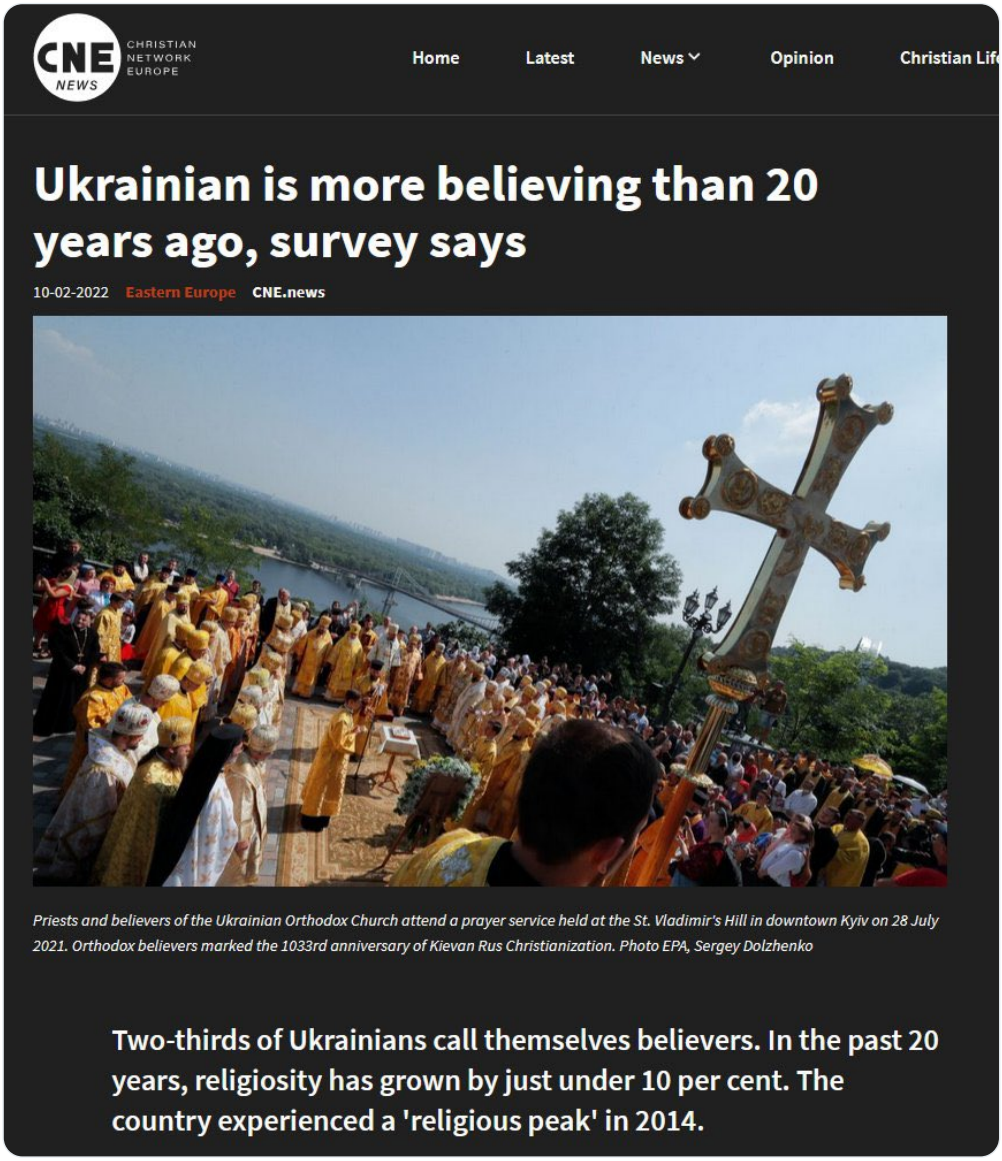
As the Russian president signed a bill to annex Crimea Tuesday, the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church in the peninsula has been experiencing what a Church official calls "total persecution."

"At this moment all Ukrainian Greek Catholic life in Crimea is paralyzed," Fr. Volodymyr Zhdan, chancellor of the Stryi eparchy in western Ukraine, told CNA March 18.

In den letzten 2 Jahren hat die russisch-amerikanische Propaganda, angeführt von @tuckercarlson und @robertamsterdam, Selenskyj der „Christenverfolgung“ beschuldigt, weil man das Moskauer Patriarchat in der 🇺🇦 verboten hat. Hier mehr über dieses Kreml-Narrativ:
18/22

In Wirklichkeit ist das Land, das Putin vor dem „gottlosen Westen“ „retten“ will, religiöser als Russland. Die Ukrainer gehen häufiger in die Kirche und haben ein stärkeres religiöses Wertefundament. Russland hingegen unterdrückt echte Religionsfreiheit.
19/22

When only 14% of your citizens go to church on a regular basis, 73 out of 100 marriages end in divorce, you've got 500 000 abandoned children, you're the European leader of children raised by single parents and abortions per capita, but you still managed to convince the leaders of the European alt-right that you're the true bastion of conservative values because of anti-LGBT laws and high levels of domestic violence.



Russland ist eines der am wenigsten religiösen Länder der Welt. Die Zahl der Kirchenbesucher ist gering. Viele Russen bezeichnen sich als orthodox, ohne ihren Glauben aktiv zu praktizieren. Der Staat fördert Religion nur als kulturelles Instrument staatlicher Kontrolle.

Trotz der Rhetorik des Kremls über „traditionelle Werte“ zeigen Umfragen, dass nur ein kleiner Teil der Russen regelmäßig in die Kirche geht. Für viele ist die Orthodoxie eher eine nationale Identität als ein tief verwurzelter Glaube – also mehr ein „Potemkinscher Glaube“.
21/22

> Another criterion to count religious populations in Russia is that of "religious observance". Based on this principle, very few Russians would be religious. It has been found that between 0.5% and 2% of people in big cities attend Easter services, and overall just between 2% and 10% of the total population (3 to 15 million people) are actively practising Orthodox Christians. The proportion of practising Muslims among ethnic groups which are historically Islamic is larger, 40% to 90% depending on the group, and yet smaller than any assumption based on the ethnic principle.[30]

Die Ukraine dagegen ist wirklich ein christliches, konservatives Land. Wären da nicht die Milliarden Euros an Kremlpropaganda, würde jeder Rechtskonservative auf Seiten der Ukraine stehen. Aber die „Christus ist König“-MAGA Fans sind ja auch keine besonders guten Christen.

> DEGREE OF RELIGIOSITY, TRUST IN THE CHURCH
>
> Although with the beginning of Russia's full-scale aggression, the share of citizens who call themselves believers rose from 68% at the end of 2021 to 74% in November 2022, in 2023–2024 it decreased (to 70.5% in 2023 and 68% in 2024 — from 85% of residents in the West of the country to 55% in the East).
>
> The country's West is traditionally characterized by a higher level of religiosity (85% here called themselves believers), the East — lower (55%). However, compared to 2000, the share of those who consider themselves believers in the Central, Southern and Eastern regions has increased, while in the Western region it has not changed. Hence, the difference between the regions in the share of believers is decreasing.
>
> Traditionally, the level of religiosity is higher in older age groups, compared to younger ones (in 2024, the share of believers was the lowest among 18–24 year-olds — 52%, in other age groups — from 61% to 76%).
>
> There are more believers among women compared to men (76% and 58%, respectively). The share of believers is higher among villagers (76.5%) than among citizens (63.5%).
>
> The Church is trusted by the majority of Ukrainian citizens. However, compared to 2010, when the level of public trust in the Church was record high (72.5%), now, it is lower — 62.5%. The residents of the Western regions trust the Church the most (78% of respondents). In the Southern regions, 62% trust it, in the Central regions — 61%, and the lowest level of trust in the Church is recorded in the Eastern regions, where only a relative majority of respondents (47%) expressed trust in it, which is only 8% higher than the share of those who do not trust it.

Andrew Tate, Benny Johnson and the crisis of biblical masculinity

By Jenna Ellis, Op-ed contributor | Wednesday, January 15, 2025

An Inside Edition report published on YouTube on Dec. 30, 2022, features a video Andrew Tate took of himself with a pizza box. | Youtube/ Inside Edition

In an era of fragmented values and the rise of social media influencers, Andrew Tate has emerged as a polarizing figure. A self-proclaimed champion of masculinity, he offers young men a version of strength defined by materialism, dominance and self-interest. Recently, Benny Johnson's podcast provided Tate a platform to disseminate his views, framing him favorably as a voice for disenfranchised men.

From a biblical worldview, however, both Tate's philosophy and Johnson's endorsement warrant serious critique — not only for the sake of truth but for the sake of the countless young men seeking direction in a confusing world.
