In today's #vatniksoup, I'll introduce a Russian diplomat, SVR officer & First Deputy Permanent Representative of Russia to the UN, Dmitry Alekseevich Polyanskiy (@Dpol_un). He's best-known for promoting Western, pro-Kremlin fake news blogs & individuals like @TheGrayzoneNews.

1/22

Dima was previously stationed in Warsaw, from where he then moved on to work in New York to work under Vasily Nebenzya, the current Permanent Representative of Russia to the United Nations, and the man who had to announce the infamous "Ukrainian combat mosquitos".

2/22

Now, before we move on, it's worth mentioning that Dima is actually an officer of SVR, Russia's Foreign Intelligence Service. He comes from the so-called PR or Public Relations line, so he's not exactly the James Bond of the agency, but he still has a lot of influence & power.3/22

Now, there's nothing new at using agents as diplomats, and Russia has utilized this strategy since the days of the KGB. For example, in Finland 1/3 of Russian embassy staff in Helsinki were intelligence agents & a lot of them were expelled recently from the Nordic countries.

Intelligence agents account for one third of Russian embassy staff in Helsinki, Yle probe finds

Yle's investigative unit MOT's probe was part of a wider collaboration of Nordic public broadcasters, in which journalists have uncovered the identities of dozens of Russian intelligence officers.

By Euronews with AP, AFP • Updated: 25/04/2023

He's relatively happily married (we'll get to that later), and his daughter, Anastasiya, was married to a Georgian man. Now, Dima absolutely despises Georgians. Which is why he was extremely happy when his daughter and her Georgian husband decided to file for a divorce.

5/22

So, Dima (allegedly) lives a happy life in Manhattan, New York, and apparently enjoys his life in the biggest NATO country out there, eating at the fanciest restaurants. At the same time, he's constantly trashing the oh-so decadent West.

Hypocrisy much?

Often tweeting against the "decadent West", it seems that Dima has also been corrupted by it - he's had intimate, extramarital relations with Lenka Houskova White AKA @whitelenka, a former Sputnik journalist and model from the Czech Republic.

Polyanskiy seems to have his tentacles everywhere in the Western vatnik space. His favorite outlet seems to be the Grayzone blog, and he's appeared with the GZ boys @MaxBlumenthal and @aaronjmate on few occasions. Here he is denying any invasion before the war started.

He's also appeared on Hinkle's "The Dive", @ReadeAlexandra's podcast, and even allegedly talked with Sarah "Donbass Devushka" Bils. She's a pathological liar, though, and everything she says should be taken with skepticism.

In general, Russia has turned United Nations' Security Council into a circus, inviting pro-Kremlin grifters like Blumenthal and Maté to spread the Russian lies. Hell, they even invited Ray McGovern who spent his 15 minutes of fame speaking German and singing peace songs.

Considering how much The Grayzone boys, Hinkle and Ritter hate the "deep state" and the Western version of the three letter agencies, they seem to have no problem in interacting with their Russian counterparts like the SVR.

Blair Says Iraqis Could Launch Chemical Warheads in Minutes

Sees Nuclear Weapon Capability in 1 to 5 Years

By WARREN HOGUE

LONDON, Sept. 24 — Britain asserted today that the Iraqi government of President Saddam Hussein could launch chemical or biological warheads within 45 minutes of an order to use them and acquire a nuclear weapon in one to five years.

The claims were made in a 50-page report intended to bolster the Bush administration's case against the Iraqi leader and released today a few hours before Prime Minister Tony Blair outlined to British lawmakers his case for war if necessary to make Iraq disarm.

Addressing an emergency session of Parliament, Mr. Blair said: "Our case is simply this. Not that we take military action, some what men. But

Iraq responded with contempt, calling the report a collection of "exaggeration and lies" and saying United Nations weapons inspectors would be granted "unfettered access" to go wherever they wanted upon their expected return to Iraq in the next several weeks.

During a heated, 11-hour debate in Parliament after Mr. Blair's statement, several lawmakers from the prime minister's Labor Party criticized him sharply. But there was also vigorous and widespread praise for his stand. In general, opposition to the Bush administration's war plans is less strong in Britain than elsewhere in Europe, where it is often virulent.

How many NATO military bases are in proximity to Russia? Dozens. How many Russian military bases are near the US? Zero! How many “color revolutions”/coup have NATO countries staged in our neighborhood? At least 5 with several failed. How many did Russia organize? Zero. NATO is part of a problem, not a solution. Get the hell out of my country’s neighborhood, we don’t need such boorish neighbors!

Russia has Super-EMPs. They orbit earth disguised as satellites. Just Google it. Mind blowing stuff.

If Russia detonates Super EMPs in Space above the United States the US power grid goes offline instantly. Most electronics get fried and the Internet is gone, permanently.

Kim Dotcom  @KimDotcom · Mar 28, 2022

US military systems are not designed to withstand 200,000 volts per meter. A Super EMP would instantly destroy the majority of military tech inside the US.

Some US ICBMs are shielded inside their launch tubes but most of the 30+ year old installations won't survive a Super EMP.

 6  94  352

Kim Dotcom  @KimDotcom · Mar 28, 2022

The remaining nuclear missiles if launched can be neutralized in transit with a follow-up Super EMP. The burst travels at the speed of light. No missile can escape it.

And 70% of US nuclear submarines are in US ports. They don't carry ICBMs. They can't reach Russia.

If we disregard the absurdity of the "de-nazification" conducted by actual Nazis, maybe Dima can answer this question: Why were the Azov leaders exchanged for corrupt Ukrainian oligarch, Viktor Medvedchuk, during a prisoner exchange?

Russia trades Azov fighters for Putin ally in biggest prisoner swap of Ukraine war - video report

More than 200 Ukrainian and foreign citizens have been released from Russian captivity, including fighters who led the defence of the Azovstal

It's almost like it was never about the "de-nazification" rather than about putting Putin's friends into power in Ukraine. Of course, most of us knew that already, which is why the whole "Ukrainian Nazis" narrative is being ridiculed all over social media.

Denys Prokopenko, a commander of the Azov Regiment who returned to Ukraine, told journalists in Lviv the commanders plan to continue fighting. He was one of five Azov commanders who flew back to Ukraine from Turkey on July 8, accompanied by Ukrainian president Volodymyr Zelensky. They were released from Russian captivity in a prisoner swap.

In response to a question about whether the Azov commanders would return to the front, Prokopenko said, "Of course. That's why we returned. That's our main goal."

Earlier, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov accused Turkey and Ukraine of breaking the terms of the agreement that freed the commanders from Russian captivity. According to Peskov, the deal required the five commanders to remain in Turkey "until the end of the conflict."

On 14 Jul 2023, Dima appeared on "Maverick News" together with elite war analyst and convicted sex criminal, Scott Ritter. The discussion revolved around "NATO expansion", "money laundering" in Ukraine, evil "Ukrainian Nazis" and how Zelensky "let down the Ukrainians".
