In today's #vatniksoup, I'll continue introducing the international pro-Kremlin network called DD Geopolitics (@DD_Geopolitics). They're best-known for spreading Russian propaganda and disinformation, and for collecting money to outlets like Rybar and Killnet.

1/19

In this second part of the series, we'll introduce the original poster of the doctored Pentagon leaks, French far-right activist, and of course some genocidal Russian fifth columnists who criticize the West while living and/or studying there.

2/19

As of today, DDG has almost 125 000 followers on X/Twitter, and even with artificial inflation it's one of the largest English-speaking, pro-Kremlin social media networks online. In case you missed the first part of this series, you can find it here:

DDG is part of the larger "vatniksphere" who often collaborate on various projects, and they've been connected to other prominent pro-Kremlin propagandists like @jacksonhinkle and @geromanAT.

This investigation was done by The Unintelligence Agency.

DDG's chat is highly anti-Ukrainian and anti-Western, and most (if not all) of the admins have been actively participating in these conversations, probably from the comfort of their homes in the West, yet they fail to see the irony of that.

All people introduced here have/had administrator privileges on the DDG Telegram channel. Many of them are originally from Russia, others hail from the UK, France and Slovenia.

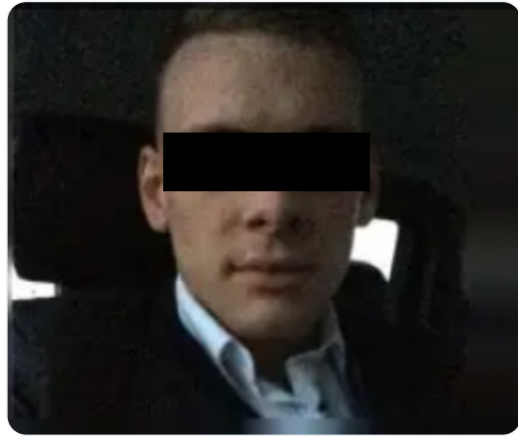

Without further ado, let's see who they are!

Regarding the photoshopped leaks, many key statistics of the conflict were modified in them, making it seem that Ukraine had lost much more troops and vehicles than Russia.

As the chase continued, [REDACTED] went through a red light on Galloway Lane before travelling towards Thornberry on Bradford Road.

After a 5.3-mile chase [REDACTED] was eventually arrested and interviewed by police, where he went on to say "Jesus" had been driving and that "Jeremy Clarkson would be proud" of his driving.

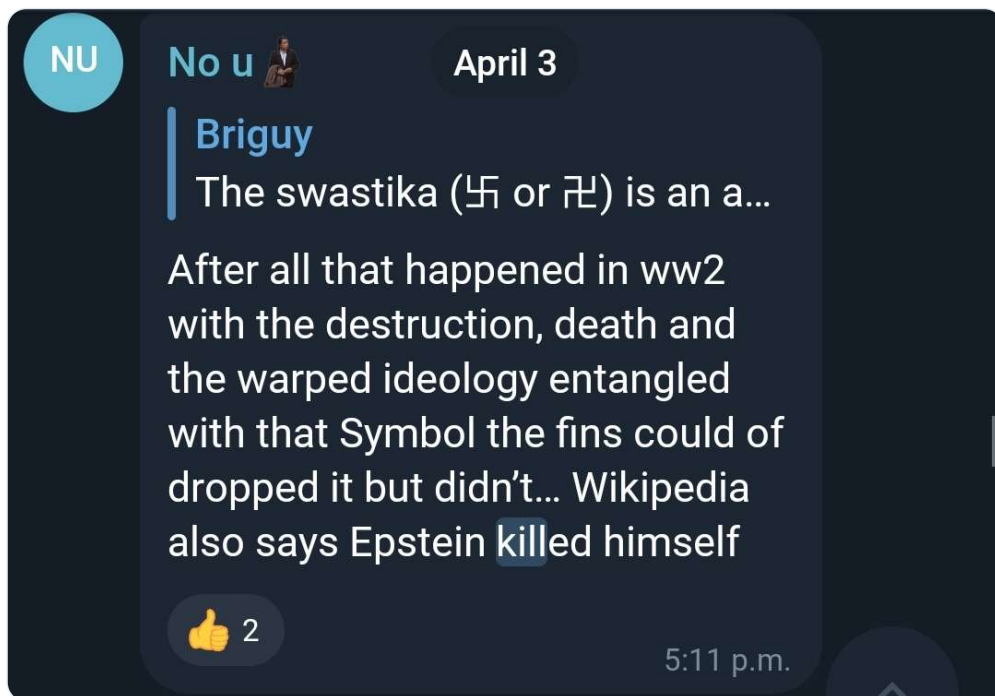

[REDACTED] later pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

These fake leaks were spread and promoted extensively throughout the vatniksphere (for example by Douglas Macgregor) and were used a "proof" that Russia is winning the war in Ukraine.

As of today, the leaks are still available in the DDG chat.

“Ukraine has already lost 400,000 men on the battlefield” - former Pentagon adviser

Ahmed Adel, Cairo-based geopolitics and political economy researcher

Douglas Macgregor, a retired colonel of the United States Army and a political analyst, told Tucker Carlson in an interview on his program on the social media network X, formerly known as Twitter, that Ukraine has already lost 400,000 soldiers in its war with Russia. His revelation comes as the New York Times reported that Ukraine's counteroffensive is struggling because some of Kiev's best troops are “in the wrong places.”

“I think all of the lies that have been told for more than a year and a half about “the Ukrainians are winning”, “Ukrainian causes just”, “the Russians are evil”, “the Russians are incompetent” - all of that is collapsing. And it's collapsing because what's happening on the battlefield is horrific,” Macgregor told Carlson.

Maria K AKA Masyanya (@venividivici_80) - Born to Russian parents in Latvia, Maria currently lives in the US. Even by DDG's standards, Maria is a real nasty piece of work. She's called for the destruction of Ukraine and killing of Ukrainians on many occasions, and even...

it's children, makes it more emotional. Gives you opportunity to talk how we supposedly keep them in camps or I forgot what it is that we do. Something horrible anyway. Creates good imagery - evil Putin stealing Ukraine's future. Most people will react emotionally to anything regarding kids. Plus they or don't want the whole Bucha thing to be looked at too closely but evacuating the children is a fact - and then you can just assign whatever evil motivation you want

It's not exactly an insult, more like a derogatory term, if it makes sense. Now it's obviously a whole lot more negatively charged where most people would take offense, before some would, some would take it more lightly. Hohol doesn't mean "rooster". "Crest" is just how Google translates "hohol".

Paul Le Meur (@plm203) - Le Meur is another administrator who goes by his real name and doesn't hide his face. He's in direct contact with a french propagandist Christelle Néant who has lived in Donbas since 2016.

Néant is also the founder of the French propaganda outlet called "Donbas insider". Paul claims to be a member of the extreme far-right "Reconquête" party, which is ironic since he's always complaining about the Ukrainian "neo-Nazis" - maybe they're the wrong kind of Nazis?
