Ivo Tahk: We had to sell BonBon's lingerie brand in Russia

The news that Estonian washroom brand BonBon opened two stores in St Petersburg in the spring has brought feelings hot in Estonia, but the owner of the companies behind the brand, Ivo Tahk, confirms that they have now separated themselves from the Russian business and that it sold the right to use the company and the brand in the summer. That, he said, hopefully, will happen on a temporary basis until the situation in Russia changes one day.

Raudvere promotes ideas that strongly resemble Russian propaganda talking points, and has no problem in undermining Estonia's support for Ukraine. But at the same time, he is strongly aligned with far-right nationalist movements.

For example, he was one of the guests at a party organized by Finnish neo-Nazi Risto Teinonen to celebrate Hitler's birthday. As you can see from the photo below, this was definitely a party that a certain South African oligarch would've enjoyed.

Even though in the Russian propaganda, the biggest enemy are always the “fascists”, who are compared to Hitler’s Nazis, they don’t seem to have any problem in having actual neo-Nazis in their ranks. It almost seems like the whole system is void of any moral values.

Aside from his own propaganda megaphone, Raudvere is also a frequent guest on Russian state-owned outlets like Sputnik. He was praised there for comparing the “suffering of Russians” to that of Jews & for warning Estonia against provoking Russia.

Harri Raudvere: The West stigmatizes Russians in the same way as the Nazis stigmatize Jews

May 7, 2021

The West, and with it Estonia, are trying to present the Russians as an "inferior race" subject to destruction, just as Hitler did with the Jews.

Raudvere has also collaborated with other Estonian vatniks like Aivo Peterson and Oleg Ivanov. Ivanov and Harry even did a podcast with the Finnish master vatnik, Johan Bäckman. Johan recently relocated to Moscow and was given a Russian passport by Putin himself.

Raudvere has long praised Putin as a hero, and his disinformation about Russia’s wars of conquest dates back years. In 2018, he claimed there was no invasion of Ukraine and called it a “civil war” – a classic Kremlin talking point at that time.

In March 2022, he was expelled from the Isamaa party for spreading Kremlin propaganda. On Nõmme Raadio, he argued that NATO should not have encircled Russia and claimed that the war in Ukraine demonstrated Putin's humanity.

When Russia launched its full-scale invasion of Ukraine (and after he was sacked from Isamaa), Raudvere founded ERE, a pro-Russian, anti-Western political party. Though still in its formative stage, its ideas – like Estonia leaving the EU – remain wildly unpopular.

Even though ERE is a relatively small party, Raudvere is a key figure in Russia's broader strategy to destabilize Estonia. He amplifies Kremlin narratives that undermine Estonia's security, democracy, and public trust – all under the guise of “nationalism.”

The party has a conservative worldview and their political program states that they are against marriage equality and e-voting. The party also supports direct presidential elections, ensuring autonomy for indigenous peoples, and they believe that Estonia should be neutral in Russia's aggression against Ukraine .

One of the party leaders, entrepreneur Harry Raudvere, said at the party's first meeting that Russia has helped the Estonian economy, synchronized electricity, and provided cheap fuel and gas, meaning that Russia has not done anything bad to Estonia since the collapse of the Soviet Union and that relations with the country should instead be improved.

The party's leaders also include former members of the Koos movement and former Võru City Council member Kertu Luisk , who was expelled from EKRE in April last year for pro-Kremlin social media posts.

Back to the lingerie business – FSB collaborator and traitor Viktoria Dressen used to work on the Russian branch of Bonbon. In 2012, Viktoria was found guilty of treason for collecting and passing on information to the FSB with her husband.

Strange coincidence.

The case was heard in a closed session and in the settlement process.

ALEKSEI DRESSENI TEENISTS DEFENCE QUESTIONS

The director of Nõmme Radio, Margus Lepa, recalls that ten years ago, Viktoria Dressen worked at Adaptes. Later, he was a sales representative of the Raudvere laundry company BonBon Lingerie in Moscow.

To conclude, BonBon-Harry is a traditional Baltic vatnik – shady businesses, collaborations with alleged FSB collaborators, constant flirtation with political extremists, and active campaigning against his own country.
