In today's Vatnik Soup REBREW, I'll introduce a Russian ultra-nationalist propagandist and "philosopher", Aleksandr Dugin. He's best-known for his blueprint on Russia's geopolitical strategy and for his genocidal rhetoric towards Ukrainians.

1/17

In my first Dugin Soup, I covered the man's 1997 book Foundations of Geopolitics — a manual for dismantling the West, breaking up NATO, and building a Russian-led empire. In it, he makes eerie "predictions" that seem to be playing out today.

Foundations of Geopolitics

century, when the role of the United States became obvious. In this regard, the position is clear: it is necessary to counteract US Atlanticist geopolitics at all levels and in all regions of the world, trying to weaken, demoralise, deceive and, ultimately, defeat the enemy as much as possible. It is especially important to bring geopolitical turmoil into the US domestic reality by encouraging all kinds of separatism, various ethnic, social and racial conflicts, actively supporting all dissident movements of extremist, racist and sectarian groups that destabilize internal political processes in the USA. At the same time, it makes sense to support isolationist tendencies in US politics, the theses of those (often right-wing Republican) circles that believe that the US should confine itself to its domestic problems. This state of affairs is Dugin called for destabilizing the US by exacerbating internal divisions. Fast forward to today: culture wars, conspiracy theories, far-right lunatics, and social media algorithms doing half the work for him.

@Agdchan

Those on the right wing who support capitalism are even worse than those on the left wing who fight it. I stay with Ezra Pound. Usury, banksters, Ritschields and Soros are Satan. Capital is Antichrist. That is why the modern West must die and all its puppets. We need new revolution - against capitalism and modernity. In favor of Sacredness, Eternity and social justice.

He also envisioned a fractured EU, torn apart by nationalism and internal disputes. Cue Brexit, rising far-right movements, and debates over which pro-Russian EU party is the biggest headache for Brussels. And all this was already planned back in 1997.

Some of Dugin's most extreme fantasies – wars, occupations, and ethnic cleansings – are unfolding in Ukraine and Georgia. The final outcome is still uncertain, but his vision is being carried out in real-time.

Eventually, Dugin envisions a multipolar world where authoritarian empires—led by Russia—replace Western liberal values with traditionalism, spiritualism, and, of course, absolute power. He frames this as a struggle between a “corrupt, materialistic West”...

...and a “pure, traditionalist Russia.” And these same ideas are echoed by Putin. His ideas aren’t just philosophy; they’re actual blueprints for destruction. Foundations of Geopolitics has even been used as a textbook and mandatory reading in the Russian military.

Dugin has consistently advocated for Ukraine's annihilation. He claims Ukraine is an "artificial country" that must be absorbed into Russia. His rhetoric has dehumanized Ukrainians, even calling them a "race of degenerates" in 2014.

During the early stages of the Moscow-driven war in Donbas in 2014, Dugin declared on Russian state television that "Ukrainians need to be killed, killed, killed," later continuing that "Ukraine needs to be cleansed of idiots. A genocide of cretins is a given."

For years, Dugin’s influence was mostly confined to Russian and far-right European circles, with some weirdos like Jackson Hinkle thrown in the mix. But now, he is appearing in major Western media outlets, often framed as an “intellectual” rather than an extremist.

This trend was started in Apr 2024 by everyone's favorite vatnik propagandist and "Russia expert", Tucker Carlson. He gave Dugin an uncritical platform. By doing so, he mainstreamed his ideology to millions already primed to distrust their own democratic institutions.

Tucker, who can't even pronounce Dugin's name (WTF is "Duujin"?), has also complained that the madman's books can't be found on Amazon. Despite being an ultra-nationalist propagandist, he is increasingly being normalized as a "philosopher" in Western discourse.

12/17

And Carlson isn't alone. CNN's @FareedZakaria also platformed Dugin, referring to him as a "Russian political philosopher" instead of an extremist fascist. This normalization is dangerous and shifts the Overton window in favor of authoritarianism. To be fair, CNN REALLY...

...needs better ratings, and maybe someone thought this would help. Imagine Western media giving Goebbels airtime in the 1930s under the guise of “understanding different perspectives.” That’s what’s happening with Dugin today – his ideas are being...

... legitimized rather than condemned. Dugin presents himself as a philosopher, but he's really just a second-rate Rasputin cosplayer. His "theories" are nothing more than dressed-up justifications for authoritarianism, genocide and imperial conquest.

Dugin's Eurasianist theories have been used to justify Russia's wars, interference in Western politics, and violent geopolitical strategies. But I guess normalizing Russian imperialism and fascism is just the next step in restoring trade relations and lifting sanctions.

The West doesn’t need to “understand” Dugin’s ideas – it needs to reject them outright. Every time he’s platformed, his dystopian fantasies get one step closer to reality. The world has enough problems without indulging another failed authoritarian dreamer.

"Gondwana (Africa, South America, Asia, Middle East, Indenious Australia) is the proto-continent of the South. This is the land of the night. It is inhabited by animal people - dumb and brainless. There reign laws opposite to the North. Instead of the crystal clarity of the cosmos-nature-language-thought, chaos -mixture -instinct-emotion-arbitrariness reigns there. Gondwana is not exactly the South Pole: it is also the tropics and the equator. Starting from the tropical zone, the trajectory of the sun and the climatic seasonal uniqueness of the pre-historic Arctic are replaced by an equatorial absence of seasons and an eclipse of the quality of the annual movement of the sun. The bestial race of "non-humans" is endowed with the third blood type. (Chapter 1)
