In today's Vatnik Soup and "Degenerate Russia" series, we'll discuss Russia's Nazi problem, Nazi vatniks, and the sheer absurdity of Russia's "denazification" claims to justify its genocidal invasion of Ukraine.

Russia loves to build its whole national identity around the Soviet victory against Nazi Germany, to insane degrees of "pobedobesie" hysteria. Russians conveniently forget two things: how they actually started WWII on the side of the Nazis...

SOWING THE WIND: THE FIRST SOVIET-GERMAN MILITARY PACT AND THE ORIGINS OF WORLD WAR II

IAN JOHNSON
JUNE 7, 2016
COMMENTARY

Before dawn on June 22, 1941, German bombers began to rain destruction down on a swath of Soviet cities from Leningrad to Sevastopol. It was the beginning of Operation Barbarossa, the largest military operation in the history of the world. By the end of the day, three million German soldiers and their allies crossed the Soviet border, inaugurating the bloodiest phase of World War II. The invasion also brought to a bloody conclusion 20 years of secret cooperation between Germany and the Soviet Union.

While Soviet-German military cooperation between 1922 and 1933 is often forgotten, it had a decisive impact on the origins and outbreak of World War II. Germany rebuilt its shattered military at four secret bases hidden in Russia. In exchange, the Reichswehr sent men to teach and train the young Soviet officer corps. However, the most important aspect of Soviet-German cooperation was its technological component. Together, the two states built a network of laboratories, workshops, and testing grounds in which they developed what became the major weapons systems of World War II. Without the technical results of this cooperation, Hitler would have been unable to launch his wars of conquest.

... and how their one big victory is owed to the massive help that the Soviet Union received from US and UK allies.

They also focus very narrowly on the military defeat of the Nazis, as traitors who dared invade them, instead of invading others *with* them.

Home | News & Events | World War II Allies: U.S. Lend-Lease to the Soviet Union, 1941-1945

Even before the United States entered World War II in December 1941, America sent arms and equipment to the Soviet Union to help it defeat the Nazi invasion. Totalling $11.3 billion, or $180 billion in today's currency, the Lend-Lease Act of the United States supplied needed goods to the Soviet Union from 1941 to 1945 in support of what Stalin described to Roosevelt as the “enormous and difficult fight against the common enemy — bloodthirsty Hitlerism.”

- 400,000 jeeps & trucks
- 14,000 airplanes
- 8,000 tractors
- 13,000 tanks
- 1.5 million blankets
- 15 million pairs of army boots
- 107,000 tons of cotton
- 2.7 million tons of petrol products
- 4.5 million tons of food

HOW THE SECOND WORLD WAR WAS WON

"The United States, therefore, is a country of machines. Without the use of those machines through Lend-Lease, we would lose this war."
STALIN in Tehran, 1943 at 20:45 in the evening

"If the United States had not helped us, we would not have won the war, one-on-one against Hitler's Germany, we would not have withstood its onslaught and would have lost the war. No one talks about this officially, and Stalin never, I think, left any written traces of his opinion, but I can say that he expressed this view several times in conversations with me."

“We’ll show them how to gut people!” he would say malevolently of the Germans—those same Germans with whom he had wanted so to be in a long, solid alliance. He had not guessed or foreseen that the pact of 1939, which he had considered the outcome of his own great cunning, would be broken by an enemy more cunning than himself. This was the real reason for his deep depression at the start of the war. It was his immense political miscalculation. Even after the war was over he was in the habit of repeating, “Ech, together with the Germans we would have been invincible!”

Crucially, the Russian state has no objection whatsoever to any other aspect of Nazism, such as its fascistic militarization of society, indoctrination of the youth, cult of a dictatorial leader, or antisemitism...

Ukraine, conversely, has low antisemitism, a pluralistic, democratic and open society, and most importantly did not invade nor genocide anyone.

Ukrainian Jewish organizations even told Putin:

Moscow's exiled chief rabbi says Jews should leave Russia while they still can, before they are made scapegoats for the hardship caused by the war in Ukraine.

"When we look back over Russian history, whenever the political system was in danger you saw the government trying to redirect the anger and discontent of the masses towards the Jewish community," Pinchas Goldschmidt told the Guardian. "We saw this in tsarist times and at the end of the Stalinist regime."

"We're seeing rising antisemitism while Russia is going back to a new kind of Soviet Union, and step by step the iron curtain is coming down again. This is why I believe the best option for Russian Jews is to leave," he added.

Goldschmidt resigned from his post and left Russia in July after refusing to back the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

"Pressure was put on community leaders to support the war and I refused to do so. I resigned because to continue as chief rabbi of Moscow would be a problem for the community because of the repressive measures taken against dissidents," he said.

Open letter of Ukrainian Jews to Russian Federation President Vladimir Putin

Mr. President!

We are Jewish citizens of Ukraine: businessmen, managers, public figures, scientists and scholars, artists and musicians. We are addressing you on behalf of the multi-national people of Ukraine, Ukraine's national minorities, and on behalf of the Jewish community.

You have stated that Russia wants to protect the rights of the Russian-speaking citizens of Crimea and all of Ukraine and that these rights have been flouted by the current Ukrainian government. Historically, Ukrainian Jews are also mostly Russian-speaking. Thus, our opinion on what is happening carries no less weight than the opinion of those who advise and inform you.

We do not believe that you are easy to fool. You consciously pick and choose lies and slander from the massive amount of information about Ukraine. And you know very well that [former Ukrainian president] Viktor Yanukovich's statement concerning the time after the latest treaty had been signed that "...Kyiv is full of armed people who have begun to trash buildings, places of worship, churches. Innocent people have begun to suffer. People have simply been robbed and killed in the street..." are lies, from the first word to the very last.

The Russian-speaking citizens of Ukraine are not being humiliated or discriminated against, their civil rights have not been limited. Meanderings about "forced Ukrainianization" and "bans on the Russian language" that have been so common in Russian media are on the heads of those who invented them. Your certainty of the growth of anti-Semitism in Ukraine also does not correspond to the actual facts. It seems you have confused Ukraine with Russia, where Jewish organizations have noticed growth in anti-Semitic tendencies last year.

When Russia and Ukraine accuse each other of Nazism:

Russia calls Ukrainians Nazis because they see them as enemies. The rest is propaganda — they dig up some staged or edited photos of Nazis with Ukrainian flags, maybe some real ones of some insignificant cringe extremists (all countries have them).

Significantly, the photos of alleged Nazis in Ukraine are almost always anonymous, never showing any named person, let alone anyone with any political power.

Ironically, when a Nazi can be identified, it often turns out to be... a Russian Nazi, like Alexei Maximov.

Stories about "Ukrainian Nazis" were rare until 2014. Then, they surged at the moment when Russia's plans faltered.

Content with "Ukraine" and "Nazi" peaks on March 4, 2014, after Russia's plan falters in the face of Ukraine's strong response, according to leaked emails.

The number of stories per day reached 71 on February 24, 2022, the day Russia renewed its invasion of Ukraine. The following day, the number of stories jumped to 91.

THAT PREWAR Odesa's Jews lived peacefully and happily might come as a shock to some. Despite the fact that Ukraine's far Right has never won more than 5% of the national vote since 2014, Russia has invested billions of dollars into convincing the world that Ukraine is full of Nazis. Unfortunately, a significant number of foreigners still bought this narrative.

"Before the war, we laughed at this. We thought it was a joke. But now, it's a very painful joke. It hurts. It's impossible to say that Ukraine is full of Nazis. It's wrong," said Rabbi Wolff.

"The fact that we live there and continue to live here – that's the best thing we can do against this propaganda."

Like many other Ukrainian Jews, Wolff was quick to point out that Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky is Jewish, and that 68% of Ukrainians voted for him while being fully aware of this fact. Wolff also emphasized that, in 2019, only two countries had both a Jewish president and prime minister: Ukraine and Israel.

The majority of the world's Jewish intelligentsia seems to understand political Ukraine's realities. Last February, just three days after Russian President Vladimir Putin's invasion, over 300 academics specializing in Nazism and the Holocaust signed a public letter, published in The Jewish Journal, condemning Russia's invasion of Ukraine and its attempts to denigrate Ukrainians as Nazis.

Wolff claims that, over the past 30 years, he hasn't experienced any serious incidents of antisemitism. "Not a sliver – not from any of the neighbors and never from the government."

Indeed, Russia has massive numbers of Nazis, active, named and identifiable, including in high political and military roles, and the Russian state actively supports and encourages them.

There's Ivan Okhlobystin, calling for a "holy war" against the "old world" from Moscow's Red Square. This was not a minor gathering of some extremists, but entirely condoned and organized by the Russian state.

And here he is with Malofeev and Dugin, proclaiming that "Russia is an empire, and any empire strives for expansion. And there will be no rest for us until Russia establishes its protectorate over the entire planet.", to the enthusiastic applause of both of them, and of the audience.

Return of the “Black International”: Neo-Nazis flock to St. Petersburg after invitation by Russia’s “Orthodox” oligarch Konstantin Malofeev

Ivan Astashin, Maria Chernykh

October 15, 2025

On Sept. 12, an international congress of far-right and neo-Nazi movements was held in the Mariinsky Palace in St. Petersburg, the seat of the city’s parliament. The event was organized by Konstantin Malofeev, a self-styled “Orthodox” billionaire who has been accused of fraud and cryptocurrency theft. Malofeev began organizing gatherings of far-right forces as early as the spring of 2014 – the same year he financed armed militants led by Igor Girkin (“Strelkov”), first in Crimea and then in the Donbas. Unlike those meetings from a decade ago, the latest gathering attracted several open Nazi sympathizers. Among those in attendance were neo-fascists from Italy and Brazil, neo-Nazis from Greece’s Golden Dawn, radical nationalists from Serbia, Germany’s Alternative für Deutschland (AfD), and other far-right groups. The conference also featured speeches by fascist ideologue Alexander Dugin and Swiss conspiracy theorist and anti-Semite Alain Soral. The event concluded with the establishment of the International Sovereigntist League “Paladins,” named after a murderous terrorist organization founded by a former SS officer.

Also Z destroys CNN

In this fourth dimension of journalism, guests can even improve their skills from one interview to another: a certain Ryan Dawson was presented as a “journalist” to talk about the war in Yemen, then as a “political blogger” to speak about the annexation of Crimea, before being promoted to “peace activist and human rights activist” on the issue of American military bases in Japan, then “author and analyst” on the Sino-Japanese territorial conflict, or even “journalist specializing in Asian affairs” on the subject of tensions between the two Koreas. His career on RT reached its peak in 2013, when he was crowned “geopolitical analyst” – sorry – for criticizing detention conditions at Guantánamo on air. At no time will the channel have specified its main activity: Holocaust denial blogger.

7/10/20 Ryan Dawson on Cancel Culture, Police Reform and the War on Drugs

Scott talks to Ryan Dawson about cancel culture and the latest wave of deplatforming, of which Dawson himself is a victim. Dawson, who spends much of his time fighting against the neoconservative ideology, has come under fire over and over again for the alleged thought crimes of racism and anti-semitism. In reality, of course, Dawson is the furthest thing from a racist, having devoted much of his life to advocating things like police reform and the abolition of the war on drugs. But he has also been staunchly antiwar, and that has helped to earn him some vocal enemies. Scott and Dawson go on to discuss the Marxist roots of Black Lives Matter, the history of slavery, the economies of Africa and skateboarding as a force for social good.

There are many more examples. Nazis or not, we've souped a lot of those vatniks already, too many to link here. You can find more about them as well as deep dives and resources on the topic on our website:

Russia itself is more nihilist than either Nazi or communist at this point. The Kremlin can glorify Stalin or the Tsarist empire, defend Hitler, fascists and communists on the same day, and call whoever they decide to invade “Nazi” without seeing any contradiction.

Russia keeps setting up and backing neo-Nazi fighting groups in the West

January 27, 2021

Russia keeps setting up fighting groups of neo-Nazi ideology under its sway in Western countries, providing training, supply and political lobbying for them.

It came to light in 2020 that Moscow was training the combat wing for the German neo-Nazi Der Dritte Weg at a practice facility near St. Petersburg.

Rinaldo Nazzaro, founder of the Base Nazi terror group, claims he is attempting to once again set up a paramilitary training network across the U.S. Nazzaro lives in Russia, is married to a Russian woman and, needless to say, is supervised by Russian intelligence. The group itself sticks to a racist ideology close to neo-Nazism. After Russian connection was revealed at the Capitol's seizure on January 6, 2021, it is beyond doubt the Russian intelligence coordinates fighting radical groups in NATO countries.

Many commentators have already debunked Russian President Vladimir Putin's absurd claim to be waging war to "de-Nazify" Ukraine.

Some have pointed out the far right received only 2 per cent of the vote in Ukraine's 2019 parliamentary elections, far less than in most of Europe. Others have drawn attention to Ukraine's Jewish president, Volodymyr Zelenskyy, and the efforts of the Ukrainian state to protect minorities like Crimean Tatars and LGBTQ+ people, who are subject to brutal persecution in Russia.

What has received less coverage is the Putin regime's own record of collaboration with far-right extremists. Even as Russian diplomats condemned "fascists" in the Baltic states and Kremlin propagandists railed against imaginary "Ukronazis" in power in Kyiv, the Russian state was cultivating its own homegrown Nazis.

Flag raising ceremony

The President took part in a ceremony of raising the flags of the Russian Federation, the USSR and the Russian Empire on the coast of the Gulf of Finland.

Case in point: Nazi mass-murderer Anders Breivik (in prison), who really likes the Zwastika too, though maybe not as much as Tara Reade (now in Moscow) and her Stalinist friends.

The epitome of the vatnik horseshoe: whoever and whatever benefits Russia's aggressive, territorial expansion, and strengthens the power of its current "tsar".

Russia spends $5 billion a year on propaganda to manufacture passivity towards its genocidal invasions, featuring such absurdities as a peaceful, democratic country with a freely elected Jewish president needing "denazification" by Nazi-inspired Wagner criminals.
