Garland Nixon works for Radio Sputnik, Russia-state affiliated media:

Garland Nixon

Garland Nixon is a broadcast journalist at Radio Sputnik in Washington DC. Garland's work centres on foreign policy with a predominant focus on anti-imperialist movements worldwide. He spent over 20 years in law enforcement and retired holding the rank of Major. He then went on to teach criminal justice for several years before settling on full-time journalism. He was a regular panelist on Fox News from 2010 through 2019 appearing on nearly every show on the National network along with weekly appearances on local Fox News programs in Philadelphia and New York. Garland is also an outspoken civil libertarian and 1st amendment advocate and currently serves on the National Board of Directors for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU). He spends his fun time reading, boating, and working out.

That's the hard part about being a vatnik: no matter how dumb the propaganda of the day is, you still have to push it 😊

Now who else would push such grotesque Kremlin crap... Ah yes of course, the Kremlintarian Party!

 America should learn from Europe's misery.

The EU and UK's attempts to hurt Russia with sanctions have backfired on everyday Europeans. The record-breaking food & energy shortages will worsen as long as they stubbornly choose sanctions over trade, diplomacy, and liberty...

70% of UK businesses will close this winter due to lack of energy.

Energy costs in France are rising by double digits, and are expected to climb hundreds of percentage points over the next several months.

In Italy, the cost of importing energy will double by the end of 2022...

German energy costs are 105% higher than a year ago, where people are now chopping firewood to stay warm. Similarly, in Norway & Finland costs rose just over 100%.

And 45% of Greek households were unable to pay their electricity bills before costs rose another 65% last month...

In response to all this, governments across the EU are already resorting to more inflation, more price controls, and more sanctions against Russia.

The eventual result will be mass starvation and millions of freezing European homes, like something right out of the Dark Ages...

But as European families freeze and starve to death, the government elites who created this catastrophe will keep living lavishly and immune from the consequences of their actions.

And it all could have easily been avoided, had Europe not expanded NATO or sanctioned Russia...
