Nella #vatniksoup di oggi, parleremo di cosa accadrebbe se la Russia riuscisse nella sua invasione e mantenesse permanentemente le regioni che ora controlla. In questo caso, ci sarà molto più dolore e sofferenza — senza pace — per gli ucraini in futuro.

Si parla molto, soprattutto negli USA, del fatto che l'Occidente dovrebbe smettere di inviare denaro e aiuti militari all'Ucraina e che questo «prolunga solo la guerra e la sofferenza nel paese», ripetendo le parole di Putin nella sua intervista con Tucker Carlson.

“This spending does not help Ukraine... Having all these boys die for nothing is wrong. And it needs to stop.”

Shameful stuff. Imagine telling Ukrainians fighting to protect their families and their towns they are dying for nothing. Disgraceful.

There has been no change in the Russia-Ukraine border for a year, just lots of dead kids.

What kind of psycho wants that to continue?

Questa è ovviamente solo retorica politica e parte della campagna di Donald Trump in vista delle elezioni presidenziali, specialmente per i repubblicani MAGA affamati di potere come @JDVance1, che ha criticato aspramente Trump prima di diventargli politicamente sottomesso.

"I go back and forth between thinking Trump is a cynical asshole like Nixon who wouldn't be that bad (and might even prove useful) or that he's America's Hitler."

Primo: questi esperti spesso chiedono un «accordo di pace», ma non discutono mai di come dovrebbe essere tale accordo. Prima di tutto, la Russia ha annesso regioni che non controlla nemmeno completamente, tra cui Zaporizhzhia, Donetsk e Kherson.

Secondo: anche se si raggiungesse un accordo del genere, non ci si potrebbe fidare. Ad esempio, @carlbildt ha detto di aver discusso con l'intelligence russa, che era «determinata» a prendere Kharkiv e Odesa, e a creare un regime fantoccio controllato dal Cremlino a Kyiv.

Terzo: se la Russia otterrà ciò che vuole in Ucraina, passerà ad altri obiettivi. Probabilmente testerà l'articolo 5 della NATO, invadendo piccole regioni in Lettonia o Finlandia del Nord. Così tenterà di mettere in discussione la credibilità della NATO e dissolverla.

Abstract

The new wave of Russia's aggression against Ukraine that began on 24 February 2022, and the intensification of the armed conflict accompanied by grave breaches of international humanitarian law, has received significant scholarly attention. Many academic interventions have examined the developments in Ukraine through the frameworks of jus ad bellum and jus in bello. Some, however, have applied a genocide lens to make sense of reported numerous and widespread violations of international humanitarian and human rights law. This article contributes to the latter stream of scholarship by contextualizing the arguments for the existence of genocidal intent behind the seemingly unrelated crimes committed by the armed forces of the Russian Federation all over Ukraine. The authors pay particular attention to the language and pseudo-historical references used by Russia's leaders as a justification for the invasion of Ukraine and argue that these statements and expressions indicate the

Frontline deaths

Forced mobilisation is “part of the genocidal nature of Russia’s war against Ukraine – another way that Russia is killing Ukrainians”, says Olena Lunova, a lawyer and advocacy director at the Kyiv-based ZMINA human rights organisation.

If Ukrainians sent to the frontlines by Russia survive, they are often captured by Ukrainian forces.

Gli ucraini hanno dichiarato che se non si accetta il passaporto russo nelle regioni occupate, non si riceve pensione, cibo o servizi medici. Molti anziani richiedono il passaporto russo solo per poter sopravvivere.

Insight: They call it 'The Hole': Ukrainians describe horrors of Kherson occupation

By Jonathan Landay and Tom Balmforth

November 17, 2022 12:39 AM GMT+2 - Updated a year ago

Summary

- Residents describe detention, torture and death in Kherson
- Nine-month occupation ended on Friday as Russians retreated
- Among those detained were suspected resistance fighters
- Russia denies mistreating detainees
- U.N. officials say both sides have abused prisoners of war

KHERSON, Ukraine, Nov 16 (Reuters) - Residents in Ukraine's southern city of Kherson call the two-storey police station "The Hole". Vitalii Serdiuk, a pensioner, said he was lucky to make it out alive.

"I hung on," the retired medical equipment repairman said as he recounted his ordeal in Russian detention two blocks from where he and his wife live in a tiny Soviet-era apartment.

The green-roofed police building at No. 3, Energy Workers' Street, was the most notorious of several sites where, according to more than half a dozen locals in the recently recaptured city, people were interrogated and tortured during Russia's nine-month occupation. Another was a large prison.

Two residents living in an apartment block overlooking the police station courtyard said they saw bodies wrapped in white sheets being carried from the building, stored in a garage and later tossed into refuse trucks to be taken away.

Reuters could not independently verify all of the events described by the Kherson residents.

Inoltre, tutti i bambini devono frequentare scuole russe e seguire il curriculum russo. Ai bambini ucraini viene negato l'accesso alla loro cultura e alla loro storia, e sono costretti a imparare la storia rivisitata del Russkiy Mir.

Russian-Style "Re-Education": Ukrainian Children Are Cut Off from Their Roots

October 15, 2023

Forbidden to be who you truly are and being torn away from your roots - this is the agony Ukrainian children are put through after their deportation and occupation.

Quindi, se pensi che l'«accordo di pace» porterà qualche tipo di pace per gli ucraini, sei semplicemente illuso. Significa solo che la Russia continuerà il suo indottrinamento forzato, si riorganizzerà e continuerà la sua guerra genocida più tardi.

Putin may have signalled in last week's interview with right-wing US talk show host Tucker Carlson that Russia was interested in negotiations but this would be so much on Moscow's own terms that Kyiv would not countenance such talks.

"I don't see any negotiations taking place any time soon," Fyodor Lukyanov, head of the Kremlin-linked Council on Foreign and Defense Policy think tank in Moscow, told AFP.

"There's nothing they can negotiate about."

Significa anche che il rapimento e l'adozione forzata dei bambini ucraini in Russia continueranno. La Russia sta disperatamente cercando di risolvere i suoi problemi demografici, e secondo l'Articolo 2 della convenzione sul genocidio del 1948, questo costituisce genocidio.

Possiamo vedere questo semplicemente guardando cosa sta accadendo a Mariupol: una volta simbolo della resistenza ucraina, la Russia l'ha trasformata in un villaggio Potemkin in cui prevede di trasferire circa 300.000 russi entro il 2035.

E non è che non l'abbiano già fatto prima. Sia il Donbas che la Crimea sono stati resi prevalentemente russi dagli insediamenti forzati di Stalin. Il quale aveva poi limitato l'uso della lingua ucraina e costretto la maggior parte delle scuole a usare il russo.

Deportation of the Crimean Tatar people. History of genocide

The deportation of Crimean Tatars on May 18-20, 1944, was one of the worst examples of crimes committed by the Soviet government during World War II.

Inoltre, se la Russia avanza in Ucraina, ci saranno altri eventi come i massacri di Bucha e Izium, molti più ucraini fuggiranno dal loro paese, e altri regimi autoritari saranno incoraggiati dall'esempio della Russia e dalla debole risposta dell'Occidente.

Ora, ovviamente gli USA hanno il diritto ad avere la loro politica estera e i loro politici democraticamente eletti possono prendere le decisioni che vogliono, ma dovrebbero anche ricordare che allo stesso tempo stanno abbandonando i loro alleati più stretti in Occidente.
