In today's #vatniksoup, I'll introduce a Swedish social media personality, Merdan E AKA @mdfzeh. He's best-known for threatening pro-Ukrainian voices, and for desperately trying to delete his social media accounts.

This research was conducted by the Unintelligence Agency.

This soup was brewed, not because Merdan is a prominent or notable figure in the vatnik scene, but because he threatened me and my imaginary girlfriend.

As of today, his activities and his associates have been reported to the Swedish police.

People seem to be upset about @P_Kallioniemi reporting on Lazo/Zoka. This fake fella is threatening to go "pay him a visit".

Please bonk swiftly and firmly, then retweet this.

Don't worry zoki, I've talked with brothers in Tampere, we are going to give Pekka and his girlfriend a visit they will never forget, we are only 70 min car ride away from him and his girl.

What's the matter pekka? You had fun when you made Sarah lose time with her children, lose her businesses, get address leaked, had her cars vandalized.

You had fun when you made Zoka lose his job, his family receive daily death threats. Now you cry when I want to show you some love? 😂

Merdan's family is originally from Turkmenistan, and his father came to Sweden from Russia in 1994. He was granted political asylum and eventually became a Swedish citizen. Unlike his son, the father claims to be "integrated into Swedish society".

He has previously also worked for the environmental NGO 'Natur og ungdom'.

A Road to Central Asia through Luleå, Sweden

By Gunnar Thorenfeldt

From his office in Luleå, Dr. ██████████ runs the largest research network in the Nordic countries on Central Asia and the Caucasus.

If you go to the website of the Central Asia and Caucasus Centre and click on the heading 'About the Centre', you will find a diagram of the centre's network. Central Asia, the Caucasus, Russia, Ukraine, Poland, the USA, Germany, Israel, Iran, China and Great Britain all have their own boxes in the diagram, and they are connected to the middle of the picture with arrows. Here, ██████████ has placed the small Northern-Swedish town of Luleå, with a population of 42,000.

'Here we have access to both the Internet and regular mail. Luleå is a central place', says ██████████ on the phone from Sweden.

The Central Asia and the Caucasus Centre has over 25 collaborators spread across 15 countries. It is best known for its scholarly journal, Central Asia and the Caucasus, published six times a year in both English and Russian. The English edition has a circulation of 1,000, while the Russian version of each issue is printed in over 3,000 copies.

The journal is distributed for free at research institutions, NGOs and universities in all former Soviet republics.

'It is not only the West that knows too little about these countries. They also don't know enough about the West. That's why it is important that the research circles get the opportunity to communicate with each other. Several Western journals cover the same region and topics something happens, for example in Yerevan, we always have a researcher on the spot who can open the window and be at the centre of events. In addition, these people have the possibility of keeping up-to-date on what is going on in local research, and reading local scholarly publications', he says.

██████████ came to Sweden as a political refugee in 1994. The following year he was granted asylum and was settled in Luleå by the Swedish immigration authorities. Within five years he became a Swedish citizen. Today he still lives in Luleå with his family.

'I am integrated into Swedish society', says ██████████ in fluent Swedish. He originally came from Turkmenistan, and wrote a doctoral dissertation with the title ██████████ at the Diplomatic Academy of the Foreign Ministry

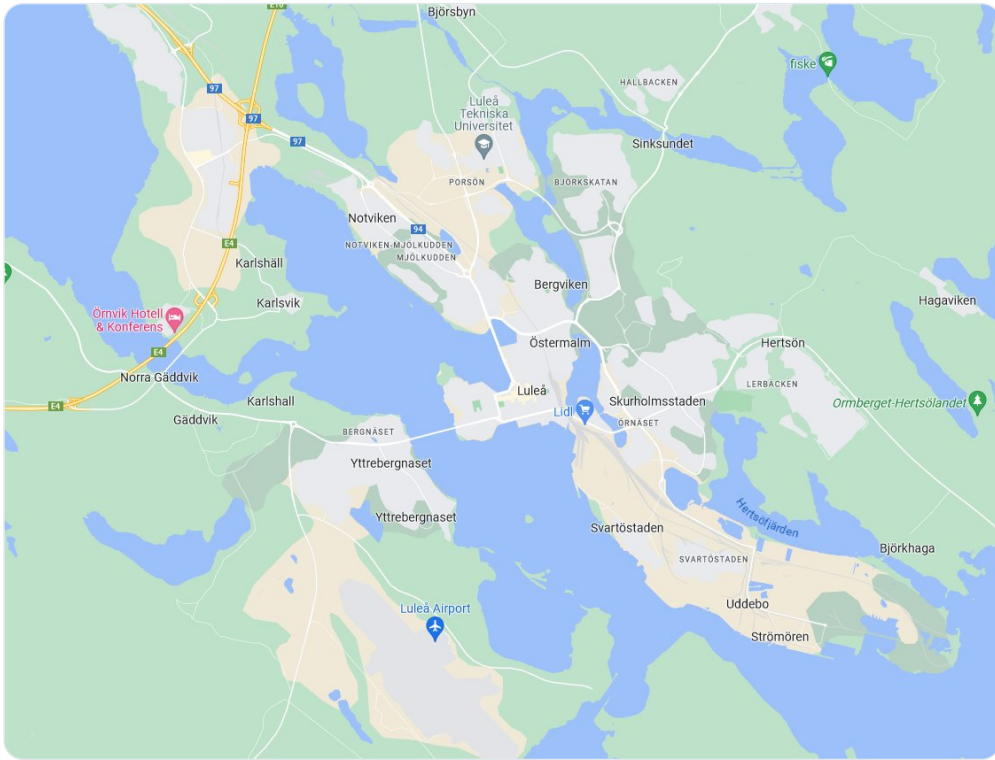

Why couldn't you continue your work in Moscow?

'They arrested me in Moscow and wanted to send me back to Turkmenistan. That's why I had to escape. Now I can travel freely to all of the former Soviet republics except Turkmenistan. The journal has to be smuggled into that country. But who takes care of this I am, of course, unable to tell you.'

Do you think there will be a change of regime in Turkmenistan?

'If you had asked me a few years ago, I probably would have been quite pessimistic. Now there is a certain hope. One can see a new generation growing forth – and the old one will die out with time. Several hundred Turkmen youth are currently studying in the West. There they will see the advantages of democracy, and hopefully they will take these ideas with them back home.'

Like his father, "Ghost" currently lives in Luleå, Northern Sweden with his wife and children. He's currently learning Russian, Chinese and German on Duolingo so he might be thinking of relocating to BRICS or to Germany if AfD wins the election by a landslide.

Merdan might also be involved in some kind of troll farm activity, as he's created hundreds and hundreds of e-mail accounts with similar names and with same password. Incidentally, he blames NAFO for "creating burner accounts" and for reporting him.

Oooff, you know you have saddened the nafdids when they make burner accounts to threaten to rape my family.

Better luck next time Sirschming, I went up against kama long ago and even he couldn't do anything 😊, one love ❤️

In the past few days, Merdan has been meticulously deleting all of his social media accounts, including the one on Facebook and on VKontakte. In the latter, he was a big fan of Igor Girkin's and also followed a page called Reports from the militia of Novorossiya.

Now, threatening someone with violence is a serious crime in Sweden. We have plenty of proof of this, and other stuff, and the authorities have been informed.

You decided to fuck around, now it's time to find out.

Oh you sweet nafoid summer child, you have no idea how long I have played this game.

If you want to know the status of this with @X, this threat apparently is just fine with them. According to @X, this tweet is NOT "threatening violence against someone or a group of people".

Just an FYI that this is @lindayaX's X now.
